

Hello everyone, as you are probably aware by now my name is Hugh Dobbin and I am standing for the position of Literific President.

I have 3 main aims for what I would do during my time as President. Firstly is to branch out the kinds of activities the Society engages in, without sacrificing anything of our regular Thursday meetings. What I mean is for us to take initiative from, for example, the College Historical Society at TCD, and hosting discussions with prominent figures as well as hosting debates.

Secondly, I would want to strengthen particularly the newer roles on our Council and give a stronger footing to the Society's newer and recent ventures. For example, being able to strengthen our charity efforts we have begun this year, and working on the efforts of the current Training Officer to create a structured timetable of workshops each semester, following those used by other societies across the UK and Ireland.

Finally, and most importantly it is my wish that during my time as President that the Society's strong sense of community is openness is maintained. I see this as the strongest thing about our Society and wish to preserve, and strengthen it, next year.

Thanks for reading this and I hope you choose to vote for me on Tuesday.
