

“Brevity is the soul of wit” – William Shakespeare

“The fewer the words, the better the prayer” – Martin Luther

“Shawty tryna rock my speed, my speed, but I got to find my keys, my keys” – Lil Mosey

Many great thinkers have expressed the virtue of speed, and I think that if it applies to writing, worship and whatever Shakespeare and Luther were talking about, it certainly applies to the role of secretary.

As secretary, I make two promises:

- Rooms will be booked in a timely manner
- Minutes will always be fast and might occasionally be funny

My love for brevity also extends to manifestos, and as such, I will end this one here.

Picture:

Second: Beth Lynam