

Eoin O'Neill
for Social Officer

FRIENDS, IITERIFICIANS, COUNTRYMEN/WoMEN...
Lend me, your ears.

This we all know is a mistranslation.

The actual quote from Roosevelt goes a little something like this “Great mind makes it to Kremlin; average minds hobble to Spoons; small minds leave after Lavery’s”.

That fundamental truth, so obvious it should be enshrined as the preamble to the Literific constitution.

If elected as the social officer of this great institution, strangely with two founding dates, I would say to the House as I said to those who wish to join this council:

"I have nothing to offer but the social events, Lavery's, Spoons and the club".
